Holiday Extras rebrands Q-Park to Airparks

Holiday Extras is rebranding the Q-Park airport car parks at Gatwick, Manchester, Newcastle and Glasgow as Airparks car parks. Holiday Extras acquired these car parks when it bought BCP recently, and is rebranding them with the name of its sister company Airparks.

Airparks has developed an outstanding reputation for the airport car parks it operates at Birmingham, Manchester, Cardiff, Luton and East Midlands. As a result of the acquisition and rebranding of the Q-Park airport car parks Airparks will now manage 28,000 parking spaces at nine UK airports.

All the Airparks car parks offer a best price guarantee, with savings of up to 60% on airport car parking booked in advance. Starting prices at the rebranded Airparks car parks are from £4 per day at Airparks Gatwick, £4.40 per day at Airparks Manchester, £4.73 per day at Airparks Newcastle, and £3 per day at Airparks Glasgow.

Airparks will offer a Meet and Greet service at several of the rebranded Q-Park car parks, including Gatwick and Manchester. An Undercover service offering secured undercover parking is also offered at some of the car parks, including Gatwick and Newcastle.

The Q-Park car park at Heathrow airport that was also acquired by Holiday Extras when it bought BCP will continue to be known as Q-Park Heathrow. Prices at this car park start from just £5.60 per day. Q-Park Heathrow will also be serving the new Terminal 5 at Heathrow from 31st March 2008.
